

© Volecka Hageny | ART Agency Berlin.

Infinite expansion

Not that Berlin had no space left for showing art, but an exhibition venue that comes with a built-in option to expand makes an interesting concept nonetheless. The REH Kunst space is housed in a so-called »Raumerweiterungshalle«, a moveable, variable architectural structure developed in the former GDR, made of 8 segments which can be telescoped or folded to create a space from 2 to 16 metres long. Needless to say, artists exhibiting here have to respond to the specifics of the space. Next in line is Konstantino Dregos (3 September – 2 October, 2011).

REH Kunst, Kopenhagener Str. 17. Thu-Sun 1-6pm. www.reh-kunst.de

Photo © Amy Blinding

